Pastor's Corner

The Promise

In today's first reading, God promises to raise up a prophet from among His people, one who will be a voice to proclaim God's will for all the people. The prophet shall speak the word to the people; to make the people know the deeds of the Lord. He shall speak in the name of God and never in his own name. However, the text warns: "Anyone who does not heed the words he shall speak in my name, I myself will hold him accountable." So, as the Psalmist reminds us, if today you hear the word of the Lord, harden not your heart, may we rather embrace it and take it to heart.

The Authority the Liberates

In the gospel we see this promised prophet in action: Jesus, the Lord. He came as a Teacher and a Healer. As one sent by God, He carried out His ministry with deepest love and concern for the people and with the desire to answer their anxiety and worries. He cured the man with unclean spirit, to prove to His adversaries that He indeed has authority over the forces of evil. Jesus is the visible image of the invisible God. Through His teaching and healing, He reveals the Father and the great love He has for us.

Jesus has left us an example to follow! Through baptism, we share in the threefold office of Christ: Priest, Prophet and King. Yes, we are called to teach and to heal. Even if we can't teach by word of mouth and with the authority of Jesus, but surely by our desire and willingness to help others and by the joyous life we live. May our minds and hearts be filled with Christ, so that we become His voice to all we meet! Amen.

Have a great week!
