Today's Reflection

As we get older we grow more aware of how short life is and that before very long we will be faced with the key moment of death. Last Sunday, our readings spoke about the after-life and urged us to entrust ourselves into God's hands, for He is the God of the living. But how literally should we take what Jesus says today, about the end of time? Our Liturgy says that He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead. But it is still impossible to know the details about the end of time. There are sects and groups who claim to know the exact date of the Lord's coming, and the failure of previous predictions never seems to discourage them from settling on another date for Armageddon. More alarmingly, we live today under the twin threats of nuclear destruction and of global warming, with glaciers melting, ocean levels rising and some species becoming extinct through climate change.

Some street-corner orators delight in warning us about catastrophes about to befall the sinful world. Jesus warns against believing such vivid predictions. Even though He Himself used the idea of the judgement day as a motive to turn people's hearts back to God, He admitted that "no man knows the date, not even the Son, but the Father only."

There are too many references to the Final Judgement in our Scriptures to dismiss it as merely a figure of speech. Many believers find it helpful to keep the judgement-day as part of their spiritual horizon. It is a way of keeping some balance amid our daily activity. Seeing our problems and our successes in the light of eternity helps us see everything as relative, and that God is the ultimate judge of all.

An advice much favoured by preachers was "Live as though each day may be your last." Most people feel disinclined to think about the last things. But it is spiritually purifying on occasion, especially in November, the month for remembering our dead. Most days, like Martha in the Gospel we are fully occupied with what needs to be done in the immediate here and now, busy with many things. We can appreciate the practical advice given by St. Paul to people who were looking out excitedly for the Lord's return and neglecting to earn their living. "Go on quietly minding your own affairs," he says, "and if anyone will not work, neither let him eat!" This is tough love, but it makes perfect sense for the life of the community.

Blessings,
Have a great week!

At Pastoral Day, a new Diocesan initiative was introduced - taking part in the Flourishing Congregations research project; a national survey of Canadian congregations/parishes. The Archdiocese asks that all parishes take part in this. It is a simple survey process but it will generate a comprehensive parish report which can help our parish identify its needs and ways to grow. Imagine if all churches could be strengthened across Canada, ours included. Our parish has partnered with the Flourishing Congregations Institute to be part of this transformation, and we would like your help! Please take a few minutes to fill out an anonymous national online survey at <https://tinyurl.com/fc429c>. We hope for 50% or more of our adult attenders to fill out the survey. With strong survey involvement, we will access data unique to our parish. To learn more about the survey, the larger project, and many of the anticipated benefits to arise, visit www.flourishingcongregations.org/national-survey. Thanks, in advance, for completing this survey!
